Academic Integrity

Academic Integrity means being honest in all academic work. We expect that all students and staff will act with academic integrity. EIT wants its programmes of study and qualifications to be respected and valued, and we want to be sure that all those who gain an EIT qualification have personally reached the standards expected of that qualification.

Students will learn about and practise skills related to academic integrity in class. If you need further help you are expected to seek it out by accessing online support material and working with Library and Learning Services staff.

Academic Integrity Values

EIT practices are guided by values that support the academic life of the institute:

Honesty	Honesty entails both intellectual and personal honesty in all contexts of learning, teaching, research, and service.
Trust	Trust is born of confidence in persons and systems that enable a free exchange of ideas and enable all to reach their highest potential.
Fairness	Fairness requires clear standards for teaching, learning, and assessment that are equitably applied to all members of the EIT community.
Respect	Respect entails acknowledging the participatory nature of learning and respecting the varying perspectives of others.
Responsibility	Responsibility for their own work is to be acknowledged by every learner and staff member, with every person in the academic community being personally accountable for acting when a breach of academic integrity occurs.
Courage	Courage, the "capacity to act in accordance with one's values despite fear," allows staff and learners to hold themselves and their peers to the highest standards of academic integrity despite potential negative consequences.

- Watch the Academic Integrity video
- Read the EIT Academic Integrity Policy
- Do the Academic Integrity Quiz
- Read the related guides: Breaches of Academic Integrity - some examples, Plagiarism, Copyright

Updated September 2026